

Thursday, October 6, 1988

McDonald's buys prints

The McDonald's Corporation has recently acquired for its corporate art collection two prints by Douglas I. Busch.

Busch, who lives and works in Roscoe, is an internationally recognized black and white photographer whose work in Super-Large format has been shown across the country in one-man shows. His photographs also have been printed in virtually every international photographic magazine.